You'd think that I am not a music fan but it just hit me that I don't know the complete lyrics to most songs that I love. I will just be humming along then joining when the chorus comes around. This is unlike my younger brother who can sing hundreds of song from beginning to the end.

Most of us are like that, I think. We also think the lyrics to a line or two ore one thing when they're actually another. I don't know why, but many songs are recorded to where the lyrics are not 100% understandable.

You aren't sailing alone. Sometime back, I searched for lyrics to a song and realized that I had totally different lyrics in mind. To me. its simply a matter in interest.
