When was the last time you had a hearing test? That long?

I had a company mandated test a few weeks ago and everything is pretty normal. No red flags were sent to OSHA.

I would recommend getting one. Hearing is part of your overall health after all.

I cannot remember ever having one. I know my hearing isn't perfect, because when there are noises in the background, sometimes I can't figure out what someone is saying, but it doesn't usually interfere too much in my daily life, so I ignore it

Ten years ago or maybe more. It isn't something that I think doctors normally include in a health check, and without asking I wouldn't know where to get one. I've done a couple of the online tests since but they aren't worth much as they don't know your PC set-up or speakers.
