

---

Subject: Anyone still keep a diary?

Posted by Lark on Tue, 07 Mar 2017 21:19:39 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Does anyone here still keep a diary? It could be in any form - whether it's a book or a video log or whatever. Some people even set up little blogs where they can post what they are feeling every day. Do any of you do that?

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone still keep a diary?

Posted by Kingfish on Sun, 12 Mar 2017 03:03:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Kind of. What I write during my internet travels could be considered a diary. That is, if you have loads of time to find everything and piece them all together in time sequential order.

And good luck with that endeavor because skill alone won't take you there.

---

---

Subject: Re: Anyone still keep a diary?

Posted by drake on Sun, 12 Mar 2017 14:31:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

This may sound strange since I've never found the idea of a diary to be appealing. As a young man, I used to jot a few notes in my journal. Along the way, I abandoned this never to go back again.

---