
Subject: Charming racism

Posted by Vernon on Thu, 23 Mar 2017 23:58:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Have you ever heard of this term? If so what does it mean to you? I recently became aware of it and I am stumped. Did humans just invent another form of racism or was it always there?

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by Lark on Mon, 03 Apr 2017 22:05:55 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Nobody will touch this one with a ten foot pole... LOL. I have never heard of that term, but I would guess that it describes a situation where someone is being a racist without being outright about it.

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by Kingfish on Fri, 23 Feb 2018 14:07:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Picture an old timer. Now picture him or her saying things that this generation would deem racist, yet he or she see's as just being what it is. An old timer who is naive to what we see as racism.....it's rather charming, don't you think?

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by johnson93 on Thu, 01 Mar 2018 03:18:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Kingfish wrote on Fri, 23 February 2018 08:07Picture an old timer. Now picture him or her saying things that this generation would deem racist, yet he or she see's as just being what it is. An old timer who is naive to what we see as racism.....it's rather charming, don't you think?

I've never heard this term before. I have no idea what it actually means, but this sounds like a good guess, even though I wouldn't call that charming. But really, what kind of racism would qualify as "charming" anyway? Is this a phrase people actually use?

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by Reinhardt on Thu, 01 Mar 2018 06:43:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It's from one of Trevor Noah's comedy routines. He was talking about the racism in Kentucky, either in Louisville or Lexington, I can't quite remember which. Basically, I think he was saying that it's racism served with a smile and Southern charm (if you want to call it that).

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by Silver on Fri, 09 Mar 2018 18:24:41 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Reinhardt wrote on Thu, 01 March 2018 00:43 I think he was saying that it's racism served with a smile and Southern charm (if you want to call it that).

Charming to the giver, but not the receiver. That sounds patronizing as all get-out. Not to mention just flat-out rude. If I were black and someone did that to me, I'd probably punch them in the face.

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by Quest01 on Thu, 29 Mar 2018 18:19:06 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Silver wrote on Fri, 09 March 2018 12:24

Charming to the giver, but not the receiver. That sounds patronizing as all get-out. Not to mention just flat-out rude. If I were black and someone did that to me, I'd probably punch them in the face.

I don't even know if the giver considers themselves charming. Saying intolerant/judgmental things with a smile is, in my opinion, intentionally being patronizing. I don't know if I'd punch them in the face, but I don't think I'd be able to hold my tongue.

Subject: Re: Charming racism

Posted by rarerat on Sun, 06 May 2018 09:33:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I agree with everyone who says this is a patronizing term. Anybody who says anything derogatory about anybody else and tries to pass it off as somehow "innocent" for whatever reason (like sexist "locker room" banter) - is probably more racist, sexist, fascist than most people.

Age is not an excuse - old timers are not stupid. In fact, it's quite patronizing to imply that older people can be charming racists because it's what goes in their generation.
