I was watching a movie where someone streamed footage of people killing each other and millions of people tuned in to watch. It's sad but true that if those sites existed in real life many people would tune in. Would YOU?

I would never tune into such a footage. I just hate anything to do with violence and bloodshed. Come to think of it, doesn't the number of people that watch horror movies appall you? I can't stand such movies at all!

I know what you mean. I think it's just funny how many people say they don't want violence or negativity in their lives and yet they bring it straight into their homes every night through television and the internet.

I think that as human beings we are programmed to be fascinated by the things that happen around us but not to us whether those things are good or bad.

You are totally right. I think that most people aren't aware of the fact that they are inviting those experiences into their lives by watching them or becoming a part of them.
