I use my laptop to stream or watch movies once in a while. There are times when the default set up doesn't hit the highs and lows quite well. Is there an app I can install to help me equalize the sound, so to speak?

Hi, Search the web...there are many such apps. Only down load them from places that are reputable.

That is something I have wondered about as well, but what do you mean about reputable places, and how would I know which ones are and which ones aren't reputable?

Hey, you can never go wrong searching the web and reading reviews about apps and what is good to use and what isn't. I'm sure you can also watch people review apps on youtube.
