Hey everyone,My Sony PS-LX250H turntable has a severe problem, well at least very annoying for auto play. When i press the "start" button, the arm moves normally up to the record, lowers the stylus, then plays it... But unusually 2-3 seconds after the stylus has touched the record, the arm just lifts back up again, gets back in its "off" position, and stops the turntable. Could anyone help?ThanksBpage

Maybe try a different model. These hundred dollar turntables are never very reliable, and you can expect them to chew up your records as well. I suggest discarding it and getting an entry level Technics or Rega turntable at the least.
