With being on the move for the past few months, it hasn't been easy getting time to check out the new movies. The last time I sat down to watch a good movie was in January. What can you guys recommend?

I would suggest that you see Alien: Covenant - that's if you're into that sort of thing. Depending on what your favorite genre is, you could go and see Citizen Jane or Norman or even Casting JonBennet.

I'm into horror and Sci-fi and I think that Alien: Covenant is one that I will definitely go and watch. As for the rest of those, they don't sound much like my kind of movie.

I like Science fiction that is more about science than fiction - if you know what I mean. It has to be 'believable' for me in the sense that it could happen in the future. Other than that, I like action and thrillers any day.

I used to love watching movies, especially after it became hard to keep track of reading books. I'm into thrillers and horrors, so to speak. I will definitely check out these movies.
