Hey guys, are there any brands that you love enough to buy all of your technology from? For example, is your TV, headphones, and speaker(s) all from one brand?

No, I'll buy the best deal for the best price for what I need. The brand name isn't really important as long as I know it is a reliable brand. Otherwise I just mix and match.

I agree, when it comes to a lot of thing, prices plays a big factor in whether I'll buy it or not, mostly because I'm cheap.

Interestingly, they are all from different brands. I'm never really keen on the brand; functionality is more important when considering electronics and sound equipment in general. On the flip side, there are companies that have made a name over the years and people tend to have a bias for them.

All my stuff is from a whole range of different brands. I've never been one to follow brand names but I will buy whichever I think is the best when I compare with others.
