Samsung just launched the Sound Assistant app for their Galaxy phone. They claim it can tailor your listening experience to the environment, let you listen to apps simultaneously and so on. Is this likely to be the future of music, say an app that can sample background noise and adjust what you are listening to to a comfortable level as it changes?

I'm not sure I understand exactly what this app does but I guess it's going to be one of those things where you get it when you use it and before you know it, you don't know how you managed without it...
