Hey guys. I would like to know how to make the sound from my laptop better - not necessarily louder. I want to adjust the quality but I'm not sure how to go about that. Can anyone here help?

Hi, It begs a few questions. First are you using the internal speakers, external ones or headphones? Next what is the type of music files, some are pretty poor and no amount of adjustment will help much. Then what is the operating system. There are numerous free audio play back programs and some are quite excellent. Give us some clues and we ought to be able to assist.

I use external speakers on my laptop and they work just fine. The internal ones once got spoilt as a result of listening to sound at high volumes. As gofar says, it would be great if you could narrow down on what exactly doesn't sound right on it.
