I think that while most of us enjoy almost any type of music played, we all have that one song we can't stand. What is your least favorite song?

I can't remember the first time I heard that dismal piece of "music", and I'm not sure I want to. I had to have been in a very dark place in my life to dredge up something like that from the bottom of the swamp.

Now if you'll excuse me, I have to listen to Cheyenne by George Strait to get myself right again.

I agree with you, that ones pretty bad to me too.

That reminds me of when I was young, some older aquantences of mine liked Janis Joplin.

I thought to myself, "she sounds horrible?" I realized it was not the sound of her voice, but her "style" (which I didnt care for either) that people enjoyed, .

But as we know, taste can't be argued.

You enjoy what music you enjoy.

I got really burned out on the song "Everybody dance now" because it was played non-stop in my dorm day and night! I even threaten to break that thing if they didn't play something else, anything else.

I have a friend who is really down and she used to ask me to sing this song to her and it made her laugh! I sent the link to her to cheer her up! Thanks.

I'm not a huge fan of it either but my boyfriend loves that song...like seriously loves it. He super hates that I cannot sing the original lyrics because all I hear is Weird Al's Star Wars version of it (The Saga Begins).

I cannot stand the song Pompeii by Bastille. I like the sound of it and all but the lyrics irritate me. I know it's about more than just Pompeii but they're supposed to work in that context and they just don't for me. Maybe they do and I'm irrational but this song just lights a fire under my butt every time I hear it.

I can assure you that once you listen to this track, all other songs posted on this thread will seem heavenly. Listen at your own risk <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sC0cvwnG0Ik>

It is a tune from a game soundtrack.

I don't have one particular 'least favorite song' but I do usually have a least favorite song of the moment. Sometimes when I hear a song too many times, it makes number one on that list.
