I came across a free (at least right now) piano class on udemy called Piano Lessons For Absolute Beginners. It seems to have high ratings and might be good for youngsters just to see if they're interested. I'm sharing here because there have been threads about kids and music classes lately.

This looks good and I've heard and come across udemy in various social media platforms. I think it is something anyone keen on learning the piano will love. Overall, anyone can learn any musical instrument here plus there are courses that you pay for as well.

Thanks for posting this, Madison. I wish I had access to things like this when I was younger, so it's great that younger generation do.

My thoughts exactly. I had a huge passion for the guitar because there were people in my family that played it really well. Had these lessons existed then, I would have learned the guitar quite early.
