I've purchased these speakers for other people as gifts and both have raved on and on about how great they are. I'm sharing because a few folks have mentioned the high cost of audio equipment. There are deals available, you just have to search and be patient until your item goes on sale.

One is a vehicle refurb subwoofer for $100. It comes with a one year warranty.

The other is a bluetoothspeaker set that I bought for my dad months ago. Now it's selling on Amazon for $200 and it also comes with a warranty. These were very simple to set up and they sound fantastic.

How much did you buy the Bluetooth speaker at? I agree that at times you don't have to rush since there are countless deals out there, so it really pays to be patient.

I paid about $25 bucks more at Best Buy when I bought them a few months ago. I'm all about bargain shopping, especially for items that are "wants" rather than "needs".
