Do you consider a comfortable couch to be part of a home theater set up? I believe that a good sitting area completes the picture. There's no need of having a really good system but with a lousy seat. Do you guys agree?

You cannot dare to have poor furniture and a good home theater set up; the two simply go hand-in-hand and the reverse is true as well. I bought my first couch after installing an excellent system and it was worth every watching experience.

I absolutely agree 100%. What's the point in investing so much in a system if you can't enjoy it comfortably? That would drive me crazy. It's the perfect excuse to buy an awesome couch too.
