Subject: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by funkymusic on Mon, 16 Oct 2017 01:33:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I cannot think of the last time I used the radio. I use Pandora or Spotify sometimes, but I usually just listen to the songs I have on my iTunes. What about you all?

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 16 Oct 2017 14:23:07 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Do you drive a car? That's where I listen to radio the most.

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by funkymusic on Tue, 17 Oct 2017 15:29:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I do drive a car. I just have use an AUX cord to hook my phone up and play my music through there. I guess I just haven't really found any stations that play my kind of music or play a wide enough range.

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by Kingfish on Sat, 21 Oct 2017 17:19:31 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The car radio and we have a radio in the kitchen. Talk radio and oldies go good with breakfast where I live. I might listen to them for a total of 3 hours a day.

Without the radio I wouldn't know any current news.

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by lilbill on Wed, 25 Oct 2017 15:52:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I occasionally listen to traditional radio when at home or when driving. With the advent of internet radio, there are a lot of options to choose from but still nothing comes close to what radio was back in the day. So many advertisements in this day and age, right?

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by gofar99 on Wed, 01 Nov 2017 02:40:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Nope. At home it is vinyl, dvd, cd, tape or XM. In the car only XM. While there are around 50 stations of various types I can get here, none broadcast anything I care about. About 1/3 are not even in my language.

Subject: Re: Do you still use a traditional radio?
Posted by frankieg on Fri, 03 Nov 2017 14:05:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

No, I don't. I might when I'm driving but usually it's not traditional radio, it's Pandora. My SO listens to it all the time though, just for NPR.