You can access everything Neil Young on his archives site: https://www.neilyoungarchives.com/ The best part? In his ongoing fight against poor quality digital music, these are all available in hi-def. They're free until June 30th and then will be available for a small fee after that. I'm pretty pumped about this!

Nice find, Aria! It requires a log in, but it was simple to set up (you can use Facebook or a google log if preferred). I think some of the songs are still getting uploaded, but once it's all said and done, there will be 10 unreleased albums included. That's amazing! Thanks for sharing!

Neil Young is among my all time favorite artists, and I already have quite a collection of his works, but this is definitely worth checking out. Thanks.

Thank you so much for sharing this, Aria, and thanks Lost the Remote for explaining the log-in process. It couldn't be easier to do right now and I'll definitely be taking advantage of the six months we have of free hi-def Neil Young!

It showed up in my Twitter newsfeed. I can't remember who posted it but bless that person. @Lost the Remote, I guess I should have fact-checked them before posting here. I thought it was going to be all his albums but whatever, ten albums is plenty enough!
