

---

Subject: Commonly used acoustic treatments that don't work!

Posted by Kitt on Sun, 17 Dec 2017 23:03:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

A lot of people take advice from others who know little to nothing about room treatments and end up doing things that make no difference to their sound quality. What are some of the treatments that you know people use but they don't work?

---

---

Subject: Re: Commonly used acoustic treatments that don't work!

Posted by Solitary on Sun, 17 Dec 2017 23:45:19 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

There are a lot of audiophiles wasting time, money and energy on things like hanging heavy drapes or rugs on the walls. This makes next to no difference.

---

---

Subject: Re: Commonly used acoustic treatments that don't work!

Posted by Charlie82 on Mon, 18 Dec 2017 17:21:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hanging rugs on the wall is definitely one of the biggest myths out there, I think. I also know people who have tried using egg crates before - also very ineffective.

---

---

Subject: Re: Commonly used acoustic treatments that don't work!

Posted by Pique on Sat, 23 Dec 2017 18:29:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Most people will do anything to save a little money, but their worst mistake is listening to others' advice who don't know anything about room treatment.

---

---

Subject: Re: Commonly used acoustic treatments that don't work!

Posted by funkymusic on Fri, 29 Dec 2017 11:55:49 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ugh, you guys, I'll admit that I am one of those people who have tried using the heavy drapes and rugs. I'm just glad that I bought them at estate sales for cheap or I'd really be kicking myself.

---