Has anyone used the new Google Home Max speakers? From what I hear, they're a bit larger than the other smart speakers out there and are able to "give Sonos a run for their money." They're pretty pricey but if they're as great as they're saying, it sounds like they might be worth the investment.

I have not heard them, however, like you said, they are a bit pricey but if they sound as good as they are priced, it should be amazing. I'd love to hear if someone gets some.
