Does anyone here know of any good magazines or ezines to do with all things audio? Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated. I'm currently subscribed to one but I feel that it's lacking in some aspects.

Me too, plus I contribute articles to them from time to time. I believe one is coming in the Feb 2018 issue.

I've checked out the magazine that is suggested here, and a few others I found online, and I actually subscribed to a couple of them. They are really good and I feel that I can learn a lot from them. My favorite so far is AudioXpress.

I had never thought to subscribe to any of these magazines before. I usually just read articles that I come across online, and that's that. I think it's a great idea to subscribe to one or two of those just to keep up to date with what's new in the audio world.

Thanks for the ideas guys. I also checked out audioholics, it's quite good. So is La Folia, a music review ezine sponsored by Madrigal audio.

Isn't it funny how the more you learn about a topic you love, the more you want to learn? It never ends, and that's the great part. I came to this forum with just a few questions, but now I want to learn so much more. Thanks for the great suggestions for mags and ezines.

Would def look at The Audio Critic, which was edited by the colorful Peter Aczel, whom just recently died. Back issues available here:
http://www.biline.ca/audio_critic/audio_critic_down.htm

Equipment is out of date, but his vision of what audio should be is pretty cut and dry: Tubes suck and solid state rules. I still like to read his "The Ten Biggest Lies in Audio" found here:
http://www.ecoustics.com/articles/ten-biggest-lies-audio/

Vacuum Tube Valley was another good one. Issues found here:

Sound Practices was pretty awesome....lots of diy/mod tube and horn gear. Can be found at:
https://www.hificollective.co.uk/magazines/sound_practice_archive_cd.html

You can poke around a find an issue here and there online for a taste, but it well worth the money...

I used to like Audio back in the day as well. Stereo Review was so-so and Stereophile was always fun to drool over.....
