I have a 2012 Honda Civic and I just don't really like the factory radio I have. I don't really know why. I might just be looking for a change. Does anyone know of a good radio I could install?

I don't have any specific radio recommendations for you, but this site might have the answers you're seeking. They let you put in your Civic's year and then they'll tell you the best way to upgrade your stereo. I hope this helps!

Oh, awesome! Thank you for sharing. That looks like just the thing I need to figure this out. I'm also glad that they mentioned on there that other people aren't too impressed with the audio system for the '12 Civic. It's always good to know you're not alone.

I have always been partial to Kenwood. Remember that the speakers are just as important as the system feeding into them. Good luck in your search.
