
Subject: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Kingfish on Sat, 10 Mar 2018 17:04:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You see a vintage, antique radio in a shop. It works and looks like it is brand new. It is very pricey, but you just have to have it.

Would you use a credit card to buy it, knowing that the value may not go up in relation to the interest you have to pay on the credit?

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Leot55 on Sat, 10 Mar 2018 22:26:12 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If it was a gift for someone or it had sentimental value AND I was afraid someone would snatch it up before I could save enough money then I would make the purchase on credit. I'd make sacrifices to get it paid off quickly though.

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Silver on Sun, 11 Mar 2018 19:53:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm not a fan of credit cards.....at all.....but I would seriously think on that one. Chances are I would, but it would really have to be a one of a kind.

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Madison on Sun, 18 Mar 2018 00:36:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would not use my credit card to buy an antique unless I could pay it off immediately and I was using the card simply for added protections. The interest just isn't worth it. Another great item will come along down the road.

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Ouroboros on Thu, 22 Mar 2018 17:19:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If it's way outside of your budget, then I wouldn't get it. Just my opinion, but if a luxury - even a really cool one that's hard to get - is way outside of your budget, then it's not worth it. However, there are other factors to consider as well, such as sentimental value.

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by EParkes on Thu, 22 Mar 2018 22:15:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would probably go for it. Things like that don't always come around very often. I would check and make sure that's the case though. Sometimes, things are more common than you think. I'd also check prices online and see if I could find it for less and/or compare prices.

Subject: Re: Antiques On Credit
Posted by Khanman on Fri, 23 Mar 2018 19:23:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Kingfish, let me ask you this: Do you want the radio because it's awesome and you want to have it for yourself? Are you going to use it? If yes, then do it. It doesn't matter if the value depreciates.
