Subject: Been on an E-Bay Bender
Posted by BillEpstein on Fri, 29 Jul 2005 22:43:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Less than a hundred bucks and all have arrived in "time capsule" condition. Good for another 50 years!

Subject: Re: Been on an E-Bay Bender
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sat, 30 Jul 2005 06:04:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's awesome, Bill. You got some really good albums there! What shape are they in?

Subject: Re: Been on an E-Bay Bender
Posted by BillEpstein on Sat, 30 Jul 2005 08:14:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

One disc of the 4 Symph's is slightly warped which the SME has no trouble with and one disc of the Turandot has a significant scratch on one side. That's it. A few ticks and pops.Puritani, Forza Del Destino and Tosca look as tho' they've never been played and all the covers are in great shape. Those little plastic discs with their tiny little graphics will be played for decades too but who delights in holding them in your hands the way we do LP's?

Subject: Re: Been on an E-Bay Bender
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sat, 30 Jul 2005 14:42:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Man, that's great. I've been noticing more albums coming in at the local record reseller, so I've been snagging a few good deals here and there too.

Subject: Re: Been on an E-Bay Bender
Posted by GarMan on Mon, 01 Aug 2005 01:18:58 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Bill, it's great to see someone spend money on the most important part of an audio system, the software, instead of wasting money on hardware upgrade like the rest of us.
