I want to buy some new speakers for my digital piano. It has built-in speakers, but they're not the best. I'm hoping to get some with better clarity. I have a Yamaha YPG-535. Does anyone have any suggestions?

How do you plan to hook them up? Can you plug these in or are you looking for a wireless option? I love the type of piano you have. My friend has one and it has a ton of options.

It's really cool. I disappeared for like a month after I got it. I guess I'm leaning toward wireless, but I haven't really decided one way or the other. I'm also wondering if it's really speakers I need or just an amp. Does your friend use any external speakers or amps?

Wireless might be more expensive than the cable speaker. I would rather invest in a good cable speaker to hook with the digital piano. I may even use it with other electronics that don't have wireless compatibility.

I would also opt for a good cable rather than a wireless speaker. Overall, you have to look at quality versus price, sound output and customer reviews.
