What do you think about this movie that was played by Bradley Cooper and Lady Gaga? I would like to say that Bradley did great as an actor in this movie and also as its director.

Kelly wanted to go see it a couple weekends ago. I was very impressed with Stefani Germanotta. But I think her stage name "Lady Gaga" is cheesy and doesn't do her credit at all.

A couple of years ago, I bought the BluRay with her singing with Tony Bennett in 2014. It's surprisingly impressive also. That's when I first realized how much more she is than a pop star that uses strange behavior to get attention. She doesn't need to do anything to get my attention; In fact, I prefer her when she is dresses more "normally" like she does in A Star is Born.

I agree with you regarding pop stars that act inappropriately, just to get the attention of the masses, even though I know that is not their intention, or not.

Avril, for example, looked very beautiful even without that gothic makeup. It is similar to Stefani. So, have you seen this movie already?

Both Bradley and Stefani were reborn in the movie. Both of them showed their talents in a different level. Stefani showed her acting skills that we have never seen before and Bradley with his directing skills.

That is nice because this film is best watched with our partner in life. The movie showed us how we can encourage one another in times of trials. I watched it alone the first time and watched again with my wife the second time.
