I love watching animated movies like "How To Train Your Dragon series" and the "Ice Age series". These movies bring back to life the kid in me. What are your favorite animated movies?

I like some of the classics. Toy Story, Shrek, Incredible's etc. But, some are just too sickeningly cute and full of lame one liners. Can't hit it out of the park all the time.

It depends on my mood. I'm not too fond of animated movies. Sometimes, I like to watch animated superhero movies, maybe because I grew up in a time when comic books were popular.

I like the animated films that are geared towards adults like Shrek and Wallace and Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit. I have two young daughters who are still enamored with Brave and Frozen and I enjoyed both of those too. A decent plot goes a long way!

And a secured sequel or prequel. Animated movies are similar to real life movies in regards to the story or the plot. The characters don't matter much when the plot is not that good.

I would pick Rango, Zootopia and Rio as my all time favorites. I love animated movies because a lot goes on behind-the-scenes, before the final movie comes out.

I could literally watch any animated movie. Zootopia is the last one I ever watched but I hope to find sometime over the weekend to watch a few movies. Has anyone of you watched Hotel Transylvania and Incredibles 2?

I've seen The Incredibles 2. I was very much amused by Baby Jack-Jack's fight with the raccoon. It was a long wait that I had to re-watch the first film to remind myself why the heroes went underground.

I like most animated movies. I think my favorites have been Ice Age (although I am not sure if I have watched all of them) and Shrek.
