Me neither. I checked a couple of the other forum sites and found people complaining of the same problem. Someone said they changed servers so maybe it is temporary?How's the AR/ black widow coming BTW?

Yes, I saw on the "nakedresource" site that they had changed servers, and to click "here" for rebookmarking, but it just led to the same thing. I also assume it is just temporary.Russellc

The Ar is coming along fine. Hopefully I will receive word shortly that my new subchassis is ready. The combination of the delrin arm board and Black widow tonearm,Linn springs w/ extended studs, delrin inner platter with stainless stud (with a much better bearing on the other end) which allows for a screw on clamp, acrylic inner platter and lead mats for both inner and outer platter, there is very little AR left. Is sounding fine however.Russellc

What did you end up doing with the motor?

Motor is still the same, I have my "stereo" money committed for the sub chassis so I havent done anything motor wise yet. There has been some discussion on the vinylengine site's AR forum about this topic.Russellc

Whats the general concensus. I don't have access to the means to audition like I used too so the argument about AC or DC motors is a blind . Be interesting to hear the two compared.
