My kids are into playing Fortnite so I bought them a set of nice gaming headphones. My daughter loves them, but my son says they're burning him up. His head and ears get all sweaty after he's been playing for a few minutes. Are there any gaming headphones that don't make a person hot? Maybe finding a set that doesn't touch the kid's ears would do the trick. What do you think?

I find it so hard to wear any headphones since my ears heat up so fast too and I guess I am with your son in this. I guess you will have to look for a different set headphones for your son.

Which brand is your son using? I use headphones while gaming since I'm old and can't hear anymore :lol: Never had my ears heat up or my head get sweaty. Maybe after a while the ear becomes slightly warm. I use Turtle Beach brand.

Is he picky with style? You can get "headphones" which are really more like speaker necklaces. They don't touch your ears at all, you place them around your neck.

Do you get the same experience with these as you would with the traditional headphones? I guess there are a few people who aren't comfortable with anything that covers their ears.
