
Subject: Speakers that look like art

Posted by Leot55 on Sat, 29 Jun 2019 00:08:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Speakers sure have come a long way since I got my first set of mammoth floor speakers by Zenith. They sounded good, but they were these big hulking black boxes that were just kind of there. But now they make speakers that look like art. Yes, I'm just realizing this. I'm not a fussy guy and didn't know speakers could look this good.

File Attachments

- 1) Bang & Olufsen.jpg, downloaded 454 times
 - 2) Urban Fidelity.jpg, downloaded 474 times
 - 3) iFi Audiojpeg.jpeg, downloaded 405 times
-

Subject: Re: Speakers that look like art

Posted by Rusty on Sat, 29 Jun 2019 14:43:11 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Guess I'm one of those guy's that think a big ole horn loudspeaker is a work of art. Too look at and hear. Some of these designer oriented speakers are aesthetically interesting, but I'd be skeptical for they being high performance sound. That one with the whizzer cone speakers. Boy, I just can't understand why this technology is so popular. I remember whizzer cones from cheap n cheesy auto speakers. I've read these things literally screech at you. But I see from the Urban Fidelity web site, they're marketed as a hipster statement. So, yeah, I get it now.

Subject: Re: Speakers that look like art

Posted by Leot55 on Sun, 30 Jun 2019 22:33:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Horn speakers can be gussied up too apparently. I had no idea things were getting so fancy. My Zenith speakers were just huge blocks. I don't think aesthetics were factored in much back then or maybe I just didn't know any better. Some of the arty speakers look DIYable, but I'm not skilled enough to tackle something like that.

Pi Speakers look good. Some of Salk's stuff looks good. Just about any decent speaker looks better than what we used to have to choose from. Craftsmanship and aesthetics seem to matter more now.

File Attachments

1) Duo Mezzo XD Horn.JPG, downloaded 398 times

Subject: Re: Speakers that look like art

Posted by Madison on Mon, 01 Jul 2019 03:05:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Leot55, big black blocks are still being made and they usually rate pretty high among audio reviewers. SVS Prime Tower speakers in particular are typically well-liked by most their owners, no beauty required.

Personally, I dig this speaker. It's elegant and interesting. Unfortunately, it's also pricey.

File Attachments

1) SVS Prime Tower.JPG, downloaded 428 times

2) Q Acoustics Concept 300.jpg, downloaded 399 times
