
Subject: Why the sudden push towards streaming movies and music?

Posted by musicluvr on Mon, 01 Jul 2019 14:23:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Why is there this sudden push towards streaming movies and music? I'm paying the fee for Netflix, why can't I download as many movies as I want, then if I don't renew the next month, they can stop my account from accessing those movies. Streaming music doesn't make a lot of sense to me either. Doesn't it hinder the artists' creativity when they're trying to hit certain things to satisfy an algorithm? Every song within the different genres sound eerily similar now. I've tried avoiding the streaming business model as much as possible, but it keeps getting tougher. My grandkids act like it's perfectly normal.

Subject: Re: Why the sudden push towards streaming movies and music?

Posted by Leot55 on Mon, 01 Jul 2019 18:26:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

They're starting to do that with gaming too. Just keep everything in the cloud instead of using downloads and disc drives. My guess is that it has to do with dissuading piracy. I'm not sure though.

Subject: Re: Why the sudden push towards streaming movies and music?

Posted by Rusty on Tue, 02 Jul 2019 13:28:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think it's all about control of profit. The middleman chain is severed. Which doesn't translate into end user savings. You have to subscribe to their marketing platform. And, if a production is popular they can further profit by licensing their property in physical form. And why does popular music sound all the same? This might help explain.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oVME_l4lwII

I'm with you musicluvr, the streaming experience is lost on me.

Subject: Re: Why the sudden push towards streaming movies and music?

Posted by Madison on Tue, 02 Jul 2019 15:25:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm not a die-hard fan of streaming, but one benefit to streaming movies and television is that you can watch the content anywhere on any compatible device. If you're at your parents house and The Handmaid's Tale is about to come on but they don't have Hulu, that's okay because you can watch it on your laptop, tablet, wherever on whatever. Some people like being able to view content on a portable device instead of being tied down to a TV and electrical outlet. Plus, streaming makes it easier to get rid of cable. Though lately there have been so many mergers that you're still getting bad customer service and hiked up fees. Again, it isn't that I'm a big fan of streaming, I'm just explaining the other side.

I don't buy that the push to streaming is meant to deter piracy. They could use DRM if that was the goal and Netflix implicitly allows people to share their account/password without consequences.

Subject: Re: Why the sudden push towards streaming movies and music?

Posted by Porter on Fri, 16 Aug 2019 03:20:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think it's boils down to money. Corporations watched Netflix from infancy till today. They saw it become popular and so they copycatted their business model.
