There are some vinyl records out there that were pressed with a stereo version on one side and a mono version on the other. They say that these records are the music industry version and of 2 headed coin, only the vinyl pressings are on purpose.

So next time you're at a garage sale and they are selling vinyl records, take some time to go through them just to make sure. You never know, you could hit a gold mine.

Any audio related garage sale finds you would like tho share?
