Subject: It's in the can
Posted by Rusty on Tue, 03 Nov 2020 16:48:45 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I did my civic and social duty around 9:30 this morning. In my parts, it's only one day, a working day, the 1st Tuesday in November to vote in person. Hope everyone was able to do theirs also with minimal wait and confidant of it's count. Thank God it's over, so now the deluge of idiotic tabloid mudslinging ads can come to an end. A little breather until the mid-term cycle goes into it's campaign orgy.

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by Wayne Parham on Tue, 03 Nov 2020 23:36:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Kelly and I were really lucky. We voted today and there were no lines at all where we live. We just walked right up, checked in with the people manning the voting office and were immediately ushered to the kiosks. Easy-peasy!

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by gofar99 on Wed, 04 Nov 2020 01:38:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, Arizona has been using mail in voting for several years and it works well. I sent mine in weeks ago. They have a system that you can check to see that it was accepted and if not will notify you of what you need to do to fix it. Simple and reliable. Other states may not be as good. Now all we have to deal with is the health insurance crud and Christmas adds. Ugh.

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by Rusty on Wed, 04 Nov 2020 13:36:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That is great diplomacy there Bruce. Here in Missouri we're still rubbing two sticks together to make a fire, in contrast to Arizona's system. But it's done purposefully of course. The slicksters in Jefferson City, the capital succeeded even in reversing the campaign reform initiative to de-politicize redistricting that had been voted out 4 years prior. My pappy used to lament the tribulations of the 60's by saying he'd like to find a cave down in Arkansas to escape all the falderol. Any cave property you know of Wayne for sale?

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by Wayne Parham on Wed, 04 Nov 2020 13:53:09 GMT

LOL! I think you Missourians have as many caves as we Arkansans. I know one family bought a cave near Decatur, and their livelihood is derived from this cave. Kinda cool! Remember that one in Springfield was used as a night club 100 years ago. It had naturally constant comfortable temperature. And one of the caves (or probably more) were commonly used as hideouts for the ne'er-do-wells around here around that same time.

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by Rusty on Wed, 04 Nov 2020 14:59:42 GMT

Yes that's no doubt true Wayne. If I found one livable down in them Ozarks, It'd probably have a nest of meth makers hold out in it though. Actually the thought of cave dwelling has always appealed to me. There are quite a few man made caverns in the KC area that were carved out for the limestone used in building material. My old house has a limestone rock basement. Found some examples from Bob Villa.

https://www.bobvila.com/slideshow/living-like-the-flintstones-10-modern-stone-age-dwellings-46211

Subject: Re: It's in the can
Posted by Rusty on Sat, 07 Nov 2020 17:20:56 GMT

Thank you God.