
Subject: Ever get flamed for being "technical" on a speaker forum?

Posted by Adrian Mack on Fri, 26 Nov 2004 14:57:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I made a few posts on a car audio forum whoes name I wont mention, where basically no body knows anything. I made a couple of replies to a thread where someone had a problem with driver over-excursion on sealed boxes and free air subs, nothing too technical but obviously way in advance of what anyone on that particular car audio forum could comprehend. I got flamed by forum members for "killing a good thread with a technical bitch fight", when all I did was explain how a sealed box works! Really, I just talked about Qtc and driver xmax! And I even explained what the terms are.... Grrrrr..... last time I ever post there, they can talk about what brands will make their subs pump and when somebody comes in with a problem I'll let them offer their own advice which is basically "take it back where you bought it" and "bigger boxes make more bass".

Subject: Re: Ever get flamed for being "technical" on a speaker forum?

Posted by Wayne Parham on Fri, 26 Nov 2004 23:23:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dontcha just love those guys?

Subject: Who's the audience?

Posted by colinhester on Sat, 27 Nov 2004 01:23:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It's hard to tell who's on the other end of the keyboard. You could be discussing technical issues with some kid that cares about nothing other than his two-sneakers-in-a-dryer system....Colin

Subject: Post a link

Posted by Mike.e on Mon, 29 Nov 2004 23:58:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

-For entertainment :PCheers!
