Have you guys seen the long list of movies that Netflix is releasing this year? They're releasing one new movie per week throughout the rest of 2021.

Do you see any good comedies or thrillers on the list?

This is completely mind-boggling. A new movie a week! 8o I'm excited for some of the titles on the list, but I'm also worried that the quality of the films will be low because of how many are being made.

This is awesome news! Thanks for sharing the list. I really want to watch Hillbilly Elegy and the article mentions it but I don't see it on the release list. Some of the others look great too. I am glad because I was looking for some new movies to watch.

Wow! One movie a week would mean so much work has been done. I'll be looking forward to thrillers but I'm not even sure if I'll be able to watch that much.
Hopefully, it doesn't end up taking much time from just scrolling and choosing what to watch.

This is really exciting! It looks like there are a variety of titles and genres. There'll be something for everyone on this list. :) I'm excited to sample these movies when they start coming out.

Yay!!! :d This is great news. Hopefully, some of the films will be experimental. I think that Netflix has a great opportunity to make unconventional movies that allow both the actors and the creative team to explore. I'm pretty pumped!
