We just built a new garage, 24'x36', one level with a gambrel roof (tin). I'm looking for a wireless speaker that will work in a building this size and have great sound quality. Tips on the brand to look at?

Do you plan to incorporate the speaker into the rest of your home or is that functionality not important? Do you rely on a smart speaker/central hub?

Depends on your budget. If you want the best you can look at KEF LS50 Wireless.

My answer somewhat depends on whether you're tied to a particular smart home platform. I'd hate to start recommending Alexa compatible speakers if you're tied to Apple HomeKit.

Alexa and KEF brand are good but it can only be depended on your budget or what you like among the two. There are still other brands that you can get that are good at the stores.

I bought the Sonos Era 300 wireless speaker from Amazon for less than around £370. The speaker has good voice control and clarity and has served its purpose for a period of time now. One good part about the speaker is that it looks solid and hasn't had any issues since I got it.
