With people getting vaccinated for COVID, hopefully there will be more concerts this year. I know I really missed going to concerts in 2020! Are there any that you're excited for? Are you comfortable going to a concert yet?

I'm not comfortable just yet. I'm not so much worried about catching the coronavirus as I am about spreading it to someone else. It's just not worth it yet. I do miss the atmosphere of concerts a lot! Streaming them just isn't the same experience.

I agree, Strum Drum! I have several friends and family who are immunocompromised. I couldn't bear being responsible for spreading the virus to others. I miss concerts and I'm going to go to as many as I can when this is over! But for now, I'm staying home!

We have tickets to go see Motley Crue, Kix, Poison and Joan Jett. I also have tickets for Luke Bryan and Kane Brown. I honestly have not decided yet if I am going. To be honest, I am more excited to watch a baseball game.

I do miss the energy that concerts give where you just enjoy the music while becoming one with the crowd. However, I'm not ready to join the fun just yet with this pandemic. YouTube is giving me life during these times but of course, it's still incomparable. :)

I too have a hankering to, as I like to say. See some music. But I won't until this mess dies down. And I get jabbed in the arm. One band I'd like to see play that I've been watching since about 1979 or 80 is about my favorite regional band. The Bel Airs. From the Columbia Missouri area. The Pruitt bros., or, them skinny bottom boys. A well seasoned trio if there was. Guitarist Dick Pruitt I always thought looked a bit like Basil Rathbone of Sherlock Holmes fame. They always pack a dance floor.

I'm ready! Bring them on... I want to go to concerts and ball games. I'd go listen to anyone right about now. @Sammi40 I'd love to go see Motley. They are only playing in stadiums right?
