Which ones do you use? I like my Bose QuietComfort (wired), but they are wearing a bit. A fuzzy sound sometimes comes and goes quickly.

The wired buds that come with the iPhone are decent. Do you have a preference?

I believe those are EarBuds. They're all right. I heard that they don't come with the newer phones anymore. I'm still using regular headphones but thinking of switching to AirPods.

I prefer wired, but since most modern phones have done away with the headphone jack, I've learned to deal with the wireless models. What can you do? I just hate having another thing to keep charged up.

I managed to buy wireless earbuds, but I still often find myself using my earphones. I bought those earbuds considering it will be more convenient to move around with them. However, it's only making me worried about losing it compared to when I'm using the earphones.

I'm always afraid that I'll lose my wireless earbuds. They just seem like something that would be so easy to lose, difficult to find, and expensive to replace. I still use them (they are so convenient!) but I'm always a little bit anxious. :lol:

I love my wireless earbuds. They are so convenient. When I first got them, I would forget to charge them, but now I just plug them in before I go to bed. They are quite easy to use and I love how versatile they are.

I can go either way. I like the portability of wireless earbuds. But I also have really small ears, so headphones tend to work better for me as a general rule. I use them both, and I don't have a strong preference either way.

I like my earphones better because I tend to lose things from time to time. I feel buying earbuds would only be a waste since it wouldn't take time before I misplace them. It's unfortunate, though, that it's inconvenient to run with earphones.

I like earbuds, especially the noise-canceling ones because it gives you the same sound quality when using headphones. It's convenient, but I have a hard time regulating its use. I think I use it most of the time unless it's charging.
