I highly recommend this movie! The dilemma will hit you on an emotional and moral level because of the boy's situation. It's not a recent show, but it's something that will make you think, and yes, it's on Netflix.

I've watched this, and I had a hard time thinking if he should kill the people who raised him. It was sad overall because he got attached to the people who kidnapped him.

There was a scene where the boy was listening to music. That part struck me how music or any audio works, for that matter, can reach out to anyone, regardless of their kind of person. It just somehow reminded me of this forum. Nice movie!
