In honor of Valentine's Day, let's chat about the greatest love songs of all time. One of my favorites is an oldie but a goodie by Marvin Gaye, 'Aint No Mountain High Enough.

"My love is alive
Way down in my heart
Although we are miles apart
If you ever need a helping hand
I'll be there on the double just as fast as I can"

Those are lyrics that get me every time I hear the song.

I'm a big fan of early Reggae. There was a style back in the 60's called Lovers Rock. Here's a couple of crooners from that period puttin the lady killer touch with sweet feelings.

This is a hard one. There are way too many great love songs. I love old ones and new ones. It's Your Love by Faith and Tim is one of my favorites. Honestly it's too hard because there are some wonderful love songs.

"The One" by Elton John. It's a love song for adults who have been through some things but finally got their payday.

It's a fantastic song all the way around.

I'm listening to it now. I love rediscovering music. I haven't listened to that song in ages. I'm not a die-hard Elton John fan, but he's certainly talented.

I like any love song by Adele. She creates such rich melodies and has a magnificent voice. I guess Someone Like You is my absolute favorite of hers. I also love Tears in Heaven by Eric Clapton, which was inspired by the tragedy he faced when his child perished after falling out of a window. It's full of heartfelt emotion and makes me think of my own children.

I'll Stand By You by The Pretenders. It's not just telling someone you love them but telling them what you're going to do about it. It's a great song.

I've always liked Celine Dion's My Heart Will Go On because it sounds refreshing to the ears. I appreciate that song a lot, and it was the perfect one for the movie Titanic.

The good old country is the thing for me anytime when it comes to love, ones with calming lyrics that cascade like falling water deep into my soul will do it.

Here for Don Williams:

Make you feel my love wasn't Adele's original, but I loved it when she sang it. You can't help and feel emotional, while the instrumentals were also in tune with it.
