Podcasts are recordings, but aside from listening, we also have the choice to watch them on YouTube. Sometimes, watching them is my option because it helps me focus when seeing the person speaking. It could be a hassle when you want to relax your eyes, though. What's your preferred way of absorbing information when it comes to podcasts?

It's a new word for "Radio Show". :lol:

Every now and then I'll want to watch a Joe Rogan episode because of a guest, but more times than not the audio version is just fine.

I love podcasts, but I have no interest in watching people sit around and talk. I just can't get into it.

Gofar99, there are some excellent audio podcasts out there. Maybe you could tell us your interests, and we'll help you find one that you'll like.

I'll watch Howard Stern and maybe Joe Rogan. I have a lot of interesting podcasts I listen to, but I don't think most of them are also shows you would watch.

I watch podcasts sometimes just to keep my focus on the recording. Only listening to it allows me to do other things, so I treat it like a lecture when the topic is intriguing.

That's relatable. I prefer listening to podcasts with episodes that are only around five minutes sometimes. However, when it comes to those that play for an hour, watching the speaker helps me stay attentive.

I'll rather listen anytime because it helps me do something else simultaneously other than pretending to be part of a conversation by watching. I mean it's not a movie going on. :roll:

I prefer listening to Podcasts instead of watching them. I do that most of the time when I am on the move as it is a good way to stay focused while avoiding other distractions. That's why I've really focused on listening instead of watching.

Well, that's a choice, but I am more focused on watching podcasts. I watch more music podcasts and sometimes about movie stars and that is not listening to it would do justice to all.

The easiest way for me is to listen to podcasts. I don't watch them on YouTube because I might be distracted a bit. But I can be working or doing any other thing while I have my earphones plugged on my ears.

I am more of a listener as I can't just fully commit my time towards watching anything for a very long period. So, for that reason, listening to podcasts that I like is the only way that I can get to achieve my aim of picking out information that I needed from such podcasts. It is as simple as that.
