

---

Subject: Can Music Change the World?

Posted by Dropuc on Tue, 05 Jul 2022 14:02:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Organizations over the years have used artists to drive a campaign about their product or a move in society. What do you think about the power of music and great songs to transform our civilization?

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?

Posted by Rusty on Tue, 05 Jul 2022 14:10:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I don't know about it transforming the world, but it sure does help with all the trials and tribulations. Some music does represent well the time period it was created. Like Credence Clearwater's Fortunate Son.

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?

Posted by Madison on Sun, 10 Jul 2022 00:40:32 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I think the song, We Are the World, is just as powerful today as it was when it was first released. It raised a ton of money and awareness for the African famine. I still get chills when I hear it. I'm not sure if another song will ever top that one for me.

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?

Posted by Becky on Fri, 10 Oct 2025 20:02:39 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Music can change the world if every single person is ready to make it work. If we are nonchalant or ignorant of what we have, there's no way we can ever change. Heal the world was one of the song that made great impact on people, I wish we can do more better with good songs.

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?

Posted by Helen on Sat, 29 Nov 2025 20:37:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Music has a way of reaching people and almost all of us know that. If it's a powerful song, it can sneak right into our emotions, stay there and also turn into a message to us.

In my family, a good song can shift a mood, get everyone thinking especially that late evening when we are all together as one.

I think the reason why organisations use artists to drive their messages is that they know that when a message is wrapped in melody, people tend to remember it and also act towards it. I believed that songs have the power to push a society forward.

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?
Posted by Clint on Wed, 08 Apr 2026 02:22:06 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Madison wrote on Sat, 09 July 2022 19:40 I think the song, We Are the World, is just as powerful today as it was when it was first released. It raised a ton of money and awareness for the African famine. I still get chills when I hear it. I'm not sure if another song will ever top that one for me.

Most humans don't care at all. They can vibe to songs such as that this minute, and the next minute they are out there, causing havoc. I am of the idea that we can change when we are willing to push towards changing truly and not about the photo ops that a lot of us use to deceive ourselves online.

---

---

Subject: Re: Can Music Change the World?
Posted by Hank on Fri, 10 Apr 2026 06:44:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Helen wrote on Sat, 29 November 2025 14:37 Music has a way of reaching people and almost all of us know that. If it's a powerful song, it can sneak right into our emotions, stay there and also turn into a message to us.

In my family, a good song can shift a mood, get everyone thinking especially that late evening when we are all together as one.

I think the reason why organisations use artists to drive their messages is that they know that when a message is wrapped in melody, people tend to remember it and also act towards it. I believed that songs have the power to push a society forward.
Music is life and over a period, we've seen musicians use songs to make a lot of societal changes in the world. Songs did for revolution and the ones done for peace. It is always clear that the world is being heavily affected by songs.

---