If money was no object, how would you outfit your entertainment room? What luxury items and audio gear would you include?

I designed a nice entertainment room that fit my budget at the time. I sprang for decent in-wall speakers, but wish I had gone for the in-ceiling speakers as well. I went with the Sonos brand, which I guess is mid-range as far as speakers go. The room could definitely use some upgrades.

I would splurge for the projector. I once saw Samsung's The Premiere live in action and read some reviews. The video and sound quality combined were impressive. My fantasy entertainment room is small, so having an ultra short throw projector like The Premiere will be perfect.

I believe I would go first for a large room. At least 25 feet wide and 30 deep with a 10 foot or more ceiling. The gear would be pretty much the same a I have now....they would have more room to breathe though. Room treatments would be a must.

I'd love to have my very own IMAX theater. I love the floor to ceiling screen and the immersive audio system. I feel like I've been dropped right into the movie. IMAX tickets are so expensive now that I rarely buy them. It would be cool to have my own. It's likely impossible, but since we're dreaming, I figured I'd go big.

If money weren’t an issue, I’d turn my entertainment room into something straight out of a luxury home magazine but still warm and inviting for my family. A big 4K projector with a remote-controlled screen for a movie theater experience. I've always wanted a space that feels fancy but still comfortable, somewhere we could all unwind together as a family. And of course, I will want it to look beautiful, maybe a marble side table, soft curtains, and a big gorgeous rug.

It will be our little safe space that feels elegant but full of laughter, movie nights and cuddles with my kids. I will also add a mini fridge and shelves for candy and drinks. It would be our special place to relax, laugh and spend time together as a family.
