If you are interested in machine learning, I encourage you to read the link below. It's a thread on "Concepts Vectors" on our sister messageboard, "Bella Vista Bablefish."

I am convinced this "Large Concepts Model" approach is one of the best ways forward for machine intelligence. I mean, there are several good approaches and each has its own niche.

But I do believe this is the way that offers the best path towards what some would call "general intelligence."
