Looks interesting. Do you know if it's belt drive or idler drive? What price range are you looking at, as I am somewhat interested. Dave

hello, it's not a belt drive, it's an handmade turntable by pierre clement who owned a shop in Paris in the mid last century. wish i could give you more info but my english technical vocabulary is kinda short. get a few info on my turntable model H4 L7 number 5028 volts 220 thorens TP60 headshell head Empire Crown 66E/X this a rare version who don't need a transformer to run because it's in 220V, the engine has been tested and work well. an H4 model recently went for 452 euros on ebay so i'm looking for a price around this one. i'm in Europe so shipping could be huge if you're overseas

I must agreee with that one. You never know who you are selling your equipment to but at the point is you are wanting to sell it right? So that should be the basis of your venture.
