Subject: This is the end of the road.
Posted by James W. Johnson on Sat, 18 Sep 2004 21:04:15 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

So youve got everything perfectly harmonized, youve contacted your power company and had the transformers down the street re-wired with Kimber Kable, and from those transformers to your speakers you have only the best of the best and nothing can touch it.Youve considered buying a straight line from the power company's damn to your house as well as buying $300,000 Wilson Speakers but you are happy enough.But NOW that youve got this wonderful package youve just played a few of the "best" CDs known and the sound sucks?? Crap , youve basically just built a race winning top fueler but only have 87 octane unleaded gas....Feel screwed?The source, the source , the source....dont forget the source.

Subject: Re: This is the end of the road.
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sun, 19 Sep 2004 04:20:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

No doubt!You're so right. But this is the real end of the road.