
Subject: which CD player to buy
Posted by jim denton on Fri, 04 Jan 2008 13:13:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

looking at an upgrade to a new CD player from a 3 year old Rotel-- these things are all over the place as to $$$--- where is the sweet spot--- something nice and not making a huge investment? I looked into Shanling tubed players Anyone got some insight here? JD

Subject: Re: which CD player to buy
Posted by colinhester on Fri, 04 Jan 2008 18:56:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I was in the same situation a few years ago. I wanted to upgrade, but didn't want to make a huge financial investment. I wound up with a ShengYa S-10. I upgraded the tube and that seemed to make a bit of improvement. It's been a very nice player. Link is for the upgraded version of what I have and is also where I purchased mine.....C
Shengya CD-S10CS

Subject: which player to upgrade from the Rotel
Posted by jim denton on Fri, 16 Jan 2009 22:50:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

tweaking my cd player its a rotel 1072 ($600) and morrow audio has a mod for $250 which can be A/B to hear the improvements---I am tempted from time to time to buy a used Meridian or Sony on Audiogon to hear what a $2-3K player would sound like --my non audio nut friends think this is dumb--as they say "wake up! Its digital a $150 Phillips is the same signal as my $ 600 player there is no diff!" Jim
