I found a JBL Electronic Crossover that I'm interested in buying, but it operates in a balanced configuration. So I did some research to find out how I can use it in a single-ended system. I found the following resources on Rane's site for anyone interested in seeing how different types of inputs/outputs can be connected. Scroll down to Fig. 4.

Yes, that's a good link. Very handy. I tend to reference this article too when people need to connect balanced and unbalanced gear.
