Subject: Repeated JVC Question
Posted by DanR on Mon, 21 Mar 2005 20:40:08 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Posted by DanR [65.27.238.228] on December 30, 2004 at 11:49:35:Does anyone know anything about the JVC SP-3 speaker?It's a three-way unit -- I am guessing from the late 80's or so because it mentions "digital" on the specification plate. Also, a logo-like AV is on the plate.I'd appreciate any info. about its cost, production date, etc.Thanks!DanRteceds@cinci.rr.com

Subject: Re: Repeated JVC Question
Posted by colinhester on Fri, 25 Mar 2005 02:52:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The only thing I could find on a goolge search is that you have a JVC product brought up from south of the border. All the hits are in Spanish. It looks like it's a three way, 10" woofer, 200W speaker. Am I close?....Cincinnati ping, Colin

Subject: Re: Repeated JVC Question
Posted by DanR on Fri, 25 Mar 2005 13:06:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Colin;After I replied to your E-mail I went to the JVC site and submitted the question about the SP-3 to the folks at the company. Perhaps they can locate and send me the info. Many thanks for prompting that action on my part!Also - where did you find the Spanish info. on Google? I looked but must have missed it.Regards,DanR

Subject: Re: Repeated JVC Question
Posted by colinhester on Fri, 25 Mar 2005 16:38:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I looked through the JVC site as well and did not find any information. Hopefully they can help.A google search of "JVC SP-3" came up with your question first followed by a number of hits in Spanish. I tried to follow the links but for the most part they were of no help. Just reading through the google hits of the description of the pages, I could tell what the speakers were. It was pure speculation on my part that they are South American in origin, but considering all the hits were Spanish I thinks it's a safe guess.If you can pull off the drivers and look for part numbers, you might try a search on that number. I'm sure there is a US equivalent, but finding it is going to be the tricky part.Yes, I live in Cinci and have for the past seven years; my wife is native and drug me here. We lived over on the West Side (Bridgetown) when we first moved up and now live in West Chester. I really like Cinci and starting to get a feel for the lifestyle.HAve you ever been to the Hamvention up in Dayton? I going to go this year (yeah, I've said that for the past 6 years) It looks like it might be a great palce for some good bargains. I just hope it doesn't rain. Oh wait, it rains everyday here.....Colin

---