You could look for a combo system. I found a home theatre system that connects to both my tv and my computer. I purchased mine at walmart and it is Memorex brand I believe.

I have a set of creatives connected to my computer. I have the small speakers as well as the subwoofer. I think I talked about this is the other forum topic. But I actually enjoy both the speakers and the subwoofer. They didn't cost me anything but 100 bucks.

Do you ever find that your subwoofer is popping when you up the volume sometimes?
