I use my pc to play most of my music and I'm so tired of the wires acting all funny. I need to always give a little jiggle to get certain speakers to work. I'm going to have to spend a little time redoing it all so that I don't have to do this anymore

Join the club, PC or whatever, it goes with the hobby. I have had to jiggle wires at many awkward times. I won't say anymore because I don't want to discourage you. You might look at the bright side: wiggling introduces transients into the audio stream which you can appreciate in true high fidelity. You know..such transient response, such presence, nice sound stage, slap to the bass, etc.-Dick
